WHITE PLAGUE FOUGHT SUCCESSFULLY

MORTALITY FROM THE DREAD DISEASE SHOWS DECREASE

Cleanliness and Sanitation Will Effectively Stamp Out Malady—Help in Coming Campaign by Doing Your Duty Around Your Own Premises—Call on Board of Health.

The great White Plague, commonly known as tuberculosis, is being fought more successfully than in past years, but it still continues to take its enormous toll of precious human lives.

Ten years ago the mortality reports of 100 leading cities showed that 45 per cent of all deaths were due to pneumonia and tuberculosis. These are kindred diseases and many sufferers from pneumonia survive only to develop an active case of tuberculosis.

Both are germ diseases. In tuberculosis, infection results from germs laden dust, drinking cups, or thru personal contact.

Investigations to determine the life of the tubercle bacilli have shown that the dust in the bedding and carpets of people who had died ten to twenty years previously, contained these germs.

The book, "Dust and Its Dangers," by Dr. T. A. Prudden of New York, is authority for the statement that an adult consumptive walking on the streets will expectorate a billion germs every day. These germs are mixed with the dust, they are tracked into the home on shoes, where they find lodgment in the rugs. People breathe the dust laden air and become infected.

At the present death rate from tuberculosis and pneumonia, 20,000,000 people living today are doomed to die of these diseases unless absolute cleanliness is established in our cities and towns. The best way to combat these diseases is to eliminate the causes of infection.

One of the greatest instruments of war against the great White Plague is the Clean Up and Paint Up campaign. Among the results of this campaign are the enforcement of the Anti-Spitting ordinance, the erection of sanitary drinking fountains, the thorough cleaning of streets and alleys, and the popularization, or washable, germ-proof surfaces thru the cleaning and painting inside and outside of homes, schools and all other buildings in which people live and work. The National Tuberculosis association declares "the easiest way to get rid of the germs that have nested in your house and around your premises is to clean up and paint up."

Tuberculosis, or "consumption" as it is popularly known, can be prevented, and in its early stages it can be cured, but we can effectively stamp out this disease by securing and maintaining thorough cleanliness and sanitation.

MUSICIAN HOME.

Fred Weaver will arrive home this evening from St. Petersburg, Florida, where he had a twenty weeks' engagement with the Royal Scotch Highland band. After a short visit with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Noah Weaver, he will leave on an eight months tour with Sousa's band.

Safe Bet

Tokyo.—The young women ticket sellers at the Tokyo station have made representations to the railway authorities to abolish the hanging of their name plates beside the booking office on the ground that they are deluged with love letters from strangers.

Victim of Tornado Getting First Relief

Seventeen days after the tornado that swept across southern Illinois and Indiana the first relief award was paid. Henry Gates, farmer, is shown receiving from Henry Baker, national disaster relief director of the Red Cross, a check from the relief committee of the Illinois Agriculture association.

FIVE THOUSAND IS GOAL SET FOR ATTENDANCE IN COUNTY'S SCHOOLS.

Next Sunday is "Go to Sunday School Day" in Pickaway county when it is expected that the Sunday schools of the county will have not only a large attendance of the regular members but that many new members will be enrolled. It is expected that five thousand will attend the schools of the county on that day.

There will also be held a Sunday School institute in the afternoon and evening at the First M. E. church of Circleville with noted state speakers on the program.

On the same day Sunday School conventions will be held at the Ashville U. B. church afternoon and evening sessions; also at the Madison Presbyterian church, Madison township, afternoon session; and also at the Union Grove M. E. church, Wayne township afternoon session. At the several township conventions good speakers have been engaged and church and Sunday school people are urged to attend the sessions.

On Sunday, June 11, the Pickaway County Sunday School convention will be held at the First Presbyterian church, Circleville, with morning, afternoon and evening sessions.

INJURED IN RAILROAD YARDS.

Ralph Palm, employed as yardmaster by the Big Four road in Columbus, was injured just as he was about to quit work Sunday morning. He was thrown from a train and alighted on his head and shoulders and was considerably bruised but fortunately no bones were broken. He was taken to Grant hospital for treatment. He is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Palm and a son-in-law of Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Wrightsel, of this city.

Going Down

At the weekly poker game Gid Carlton, who makes machinery for motion-picture making, was discussing ancient history with Frank Lawrence, editor-in-chief of Universal pictures, the Los Angeles Times states. Gid even showed Frank a picture of some Swedish king from whom the Carltons traced their ancestry.

"That's all right," said Frank, "but, after all, that king isn't so very far back. I can trace my family back a great deal farther."

"So can I," cried Gid, determined not to be outdone. "I can trace my ancestors back to—well, I don't know exactly who, but we've been descending for centuries."

AMBULANCE TRIP.

Mrs. John Ward, of Kinderhook, was taken to Mt. Carmel hospital Columbus today in Albough's ambulance for treatment.

PERSONALS

Miss Mary Hurtt spent the day in Columbus.

Mrs. George H. Fickardt spent the day in Columbus.

Mrs. Clifford P. Heiskell is visiting relatives in Columbus.

W. F. Anderson, of Marysville, was a business visitor in the city today.

Mrs. Charles Schwarz went to Groveport today to visit Mrs. John Myers.

Frank Gordon and William Niles were business visitors in Columbus today.

Mr. and Mrs. Harvey S. Heffner and daughter, Miss Mary, spent the day in Columbus.

Dr. S. J. Irwin and Allen T. Hammel attended the Shrine circus in Columbus today.

Mrs. Harry Stoers of Cleveland, who has been visiting her sister, Mrs. Ellis worth Hoffman, of Pleasant street, has returned home.

Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Linehan, of Cleveland, who have been guests of Misses Maye and Cora Pickens since Sunday, have returned home.

Mr. and Mrs. John Wrightsel, Mr. and Mrs. Wilson Huffman and Miss Rosetta Wrightsel spent Sunday with and Mrs. R. R. Wrightsel, of Portsmouth.

NEW GOULD BABY

Mrs. Henry A. Bishop, Jr. (former Gloria Gould), gazing at her daughter, Gloria Gould Bishop, in her home in New York. Mrs. Gould conducts a dancing school at a hotel, but will devote little time to it for the present since little Gloria will take most of her attention. The mother is the daughter of the late George J. Gould and Edith Kingdon Gould.

Giant Pumpkin

A 90-pound pumpkin was grown in a California field which, when turned into pies, made 125 of the dainties.

MA SWEET'S WONDERFUL DAUGHTERS

Playlet by Ladies of Eastern Star Tuesday Night Was a Real Scream.

A regular session of Circleville chapter, Order of the Eastern Star, was held Tuesday evening after which a program was rendered by the members of Group Four.

The first number was a piano duet by Miss Carrie Johnson and Miss Estella Grimes and this was followed by a vocal duet by Mrs. M. B. Trout and Miss Grimes.

Then came the faultless presentation of the playlet, "The Wonderful Sweet Family" with the following all-star cast:

Ma Sweet Mrs. Agnes Strahm
Armity Ann Mrs. Minnie Weaver
Betsey Belindy Mrs. Bessie Long
Caroline Cordelia Mrs. Lucy B. Price
Dorothy Delilah Mrs. Myrtle South
Elizabeth Eliza Mrs. Stella Griner
Frances Theodory Mrs. Mae B. Toibert
Gloriana Gadabout

..... Mrs. Hattie Rife
The play was under the direction of Mrs. Mary Mack and it made a decided hit with the audience numbering 80 or 90 members of the order.

The daughters of Ma Sweet were all quite accomplished, each was an artist in her line and the widow had no impediment in her speech when it came to informing the anxious public of their wonderful abilities.

It is understood that "The Family" has flattering offers to present the play in the villages of Lancaster, Chillicothe, Washington C. H., and Mutton Jerk.

Following the ordeal, refreshments were served.

NEWS ABOUT COURT HOUSE

General Happenings Taken From the Records of the Various County Offices.

Suit For Divorce.

Beulah B. Bailey has filed in probate court a suit for divorce from Fred Bailey. The couple have been married four years and have no children. The plaintiff charges the defendant with extreme cruelty. She asks to be restored to her maiden name, Beulah B. Liston. George G. Adkins and Milt Morris represent the plaintiff.

George Blank Will.

The will of the late George Blank has been probated. He leaves all his property to his executor, I. F. Snyder who is empowered to pay all debts and to give the remainder to St. Philip's Episcopal church. The estate is estimated to be worth $4,000. The will is dated March 4, 1925. Anna C. Dresbach and G. S. Corne were the subscribing witnesses.

Failure to Provide.

Oscar Hurley was placed under arrest Tuesday evening on a charge preferred by his wife who charged him with failure to provide for minor children. He had a hearing before Mayor Fitzpatrick and was bound over to the grand jury in the sum of $500 and in default was placed in the county jail.

Appointed Guardian.

Clinton Strawser Sr., was appointed guardian of Clinton Strawser Jr., by Probate Judge Adkins Tuesday.

Child Adoption

A Hurry-up Call!

"My boss says he can't come, after all," said the plumber's boy. "But as it was a 'hurry-up' call, he sent me."

"But I never sent for anyone," said the mistress of the house, rather puzzled.

"O, then," the boy concluded, "it must have been the folks as was here before you moved in."

Any Bug in a Storm

"Do you hear that?" asked the fair maid, as there came to their ears the sound of a heavy step. "It is father. Fly, sweetheart, fly!"

"You mean flee," corrected the lover.

"Just as you please—but this is no time for entomological distinctions."—Country Gentleman.

MR. FARMER

Spring plowing has commenced. So also has your troubles. A few years ago a broken casting meant days of delay but now things are different.

I fix them while you wait. It is a common occurrence for valves to break in Ford tractors and push a hole thru the cylinder head. Instead of paying $14 for a new one, bring me the broken one and for $5 difference I will sell you a new one.

I fix anything in metal.

KEEPING WELL
INHERITING WEB FINGERS

DR. FREDERICK R. GREEN
Editor of "HEALTH"

MR. BRYAN doesn't believe in evolution. If Mr. Bryan would study comparative embryology, he would learn that each individual living thing, in its growth, passes in a few weeks or months through all the forms which its race has passed through in hundreds of thousands of years. Each animal body, whether a frog, a bird, a lion or a man, is for a short time in its growth like all the other and lower forms from which it has come.

Man has developed or evolved from and through all the lower forms of life and each has left its marks on him. These have generally been lost or covered up but sometimes, for some strange reasons, these marks of our lowly origin remain. They are what comparative anatomists call "vestigial remnants."

One of these strange occasional survivals is a webbing of the fingers and toes. The fish have fins, broad flat paddles by which they can force their way through the water. Frogs have distinct toes, but they are joined together by skin so as to form a broad propeller. Ducks, like all water fowl, have webbed feet.

But when man got away from the sea and became a land animal he lost his webs on his hands and feet. He needed fingers and toes more than he did swimming apparatus, so they became separate and ununited down to the base of the third joint. The human hand is a wonderful piece of machinery, more useful than the paw of any animal and it is the human hand that has made man superior to and more powerful than all beasts.

Occasionally an individual "throws back" to his sea-born ancestors and is born with webbed fingers or toes. Why nobody knows.

An unusual series of such cases is reported by Dr. Douglas P. Murphy in a recent issue of the Journal of the American Medical Association. In five generations of a family in a mountain community, fourteen cases were found. The first member, a mountaineer, had the second and third toes on his right foot webbed. Although this is the first case which Doctor Murphy saw it was evidently considered a family mark since the mountaineer threatened to disown his first child if it did not have this defect. Fortunately for his domestic happiness, his first son had all his fingers and toes webbed. The son had ten children, three of which had webbed fingers or toes. In the next two generations, nine of the children had this family mark.

What is the cause of this peculiarity? No one knows. It occurred in boys as often as in girls. In this family, it was found in one-third of all the children. It only occurred in the children of web-fingered parents. Neither the children nor grandchildren of normal members showed this deformity.

Perfume From Philippines.

White-Green Flannel With Sports Blouse

In vernal green, this winsome spring suit of flannel should be a prime favorite. It is in two pieces, piped in white, and is worn with a white sports blouse.

Collar and Cuff Sets of Linen or Cotton

Day-time collar and cuff sets are done in a variety of linen and cotton materials. Very showy ones are made of plaid and checked gingham, with quite deep over-cuffs to match the collar. The colors are very smart in blue, rose, orange, mauve on white, and many lovely mixtures are shown. Besides the ginghams in patterns are the pretty chambrays in plain colors. In heavy art linen some of the most stunning neckwear sets are designed, and they employ all of the new "art" shades. Extreme flashy novelties are being introduced, such as collars and deep Medici cuffs in colored kid on which the pattern is stamped, painted, perforated or embroidered. Tan leather collar and cuffs are finished with a deep scalloped border, combined with an eyelet pattern, perforated. This effective idea is repeated in light colored kid in silver and gold finished leather.

The scallop, pointed or round, shallow or deep, is the most popular pattern shown in the novelty collar and cuff sets. Some among the variations in these are most lovely. A flat round collar and narrow pointed cuffs are made of pale green ottoman silk bound with silver ribbon, piped with black silk. One of similar pattern is made of soft "yellow-gray" bengaline bound with gilt ribbon, showing a core of black satin. Black and white, green and white, and blue and white are more popular than all of the other possible combinations.

Colors Gentler Than They Were Last Season

In the lightweight sports suits and frocks for general street wear colors are gentler than they were last season and the season preceding. "Natural" is the name describing the shade of material which is now in vogue for spring frocks, says a fashion correspondent.

There is natural kasha, for example, the soft wheat-colored material that resembles old-style camel's-hair and has all of the lovable qualities of that staple among fine dress fabrics. Engaging models of this tone are shown in tunic frocks and two-piece suits. Invariably they are built along the simplest lines, presenting all of the new details, but without exaggeration. One delightful ensemble suit is made of natural kasha in a shade that is almost cafe-au-lait. The straight, simple frock is short, being 14 inches from the floor and narrow. Above the hips a front panel forming a waist-coat of flame-colored crepe is added. The seven-eighths length coat of the woolen stuff is lined with the crepe matching the waist coat, and a piping of this and black outlines the long, narrow collar lapel, the cuff bands and a strap that goes about the hips, crossing in front.

A soft hat of the kasha cloth, the crown square and rather high and the small brim slightly rolling, has a simple band of red for its trimming.

Sports Duds Should Be Practical in Texture

Sports clothes can be very pretty but they must be practical in texture. Homespun, whipcord, rough serge, and all the waterproof materials are useful for the purpose. Woolen sports mufflers are edged of contrasting color and material; scarlet galon, musquash, bright green wood beads, tapestry embroidery, and so on, in three-inch bands.

Cosy little snow-caps are made of brushed wool, and have an attached scarf which twists round the neck. Russian cross-stitch embroidery in its primitive crude colors is very effective for pull-over caps.

WHAT DOES THIS CAMPAIGN DO?

The Clean Up and Paint Up campaign develops community spirit. All classes of people learn to work and play together. Chronic knockers are led into the ranks of the loyal and successful boosters.

Streets and alleys are cleaned up, repaired, and thereafter kept in good condition.

Fire losses are reduced through the removal of waste and rubbish. Fire traps are razed and often replaced by modern buildings.

Vacant grounds are improved, mowed, cleared of rubbish, and converted into playgrounds or thrift gardens, thus preventing their return to disorderliness.

Public buildings are renovated. Landscaping is renewed. Trees are planted.

Homes are cleaned and beautified, inside and out. Grounds, front and back, alleys and outbuildings are cleaned up. Outbuildings and fences are painted and repaired.

Breeding places of disease are rooted up and destroyed. Flies, mosquitoes, rats, roaches and other pests are eliminated. This campaign saves human lives.

Property values are restored or greatly increased. Warehouses and factory buildings are cleaned up and painted up to an extent that visibly improves the morale and efficiency of the workers.

It advertises the city. Many communities have shown a more rapid growth in population after this campaign was inaugurated than they had ever hoped to enjoy.

This campaign helps business. It starts repairs and building activity. It creates a lively demand upon local dealers for everything needed in making homes clean and attractive and safe from fire, disease and the weather. It stabilizes, restores and increases the value of real estate and helps the bankers and the borrowers.

It develops good citizenship and builds character.

Circleville's campaign starts Monday, May 4th, and lasts one week. Do your part to make it a success.

Trick Costs Hubby a Tie.

The husband who had always left the buying of necktie to his wife exhibited a scarf of startling colors rather sheepishly when he came home to dinner. The tie was the sort that a maiden aunt living in Utica might have sent him. "I'm sorry," he explained humbly, "but I couldn't help buying it. I was hurrying for my train along Forty-second street when I looked down and saw a $5 bill on the pavement. I stopped to pick it up and found it fastened there, somehow. Then I discovered it was in front of a stand that these neckties were being peddled from. The crowd gave me the merry laugh and I had to buy one of the things to keep my self-respect."—New York Sun.

The time is passed when the measure of the value of a memorial is quantity. I hope the time has come when that measure is quality. I care not whether the material be marble or granite, its future will be measured by the character of the design. It is quality that has preserved for us the finest examples in painting and sculpture. It is quality that will stamp our imprint upon cemeteries of the future. Simplicity, correct lines and proportions and proper ornamentation are the real fundamentals. A design that is right, material that is lasting, and perfect workmanship, spells success for the future of this industry and the beautification of the cemetery. NO TIME TO WASTE

A man who was known as a persistent shopper, but a very poor buyer, entered a meat emporium and intercepted the proprietor.

"How much," he asked, "are veal cutlets?"

"Unseen cents a pound."

"How much are pork chops?"

"Two cents less," responded the butcher, "but please don't detain me unless you mean business, as I have waiting a couple of customers who want to talk turkey."—Exchange.

A Mean Advantage

"Gentlemen," said the chairman of a public banquet, "before I introduce the next speaker there will be a ten-minute recess, giving you all a chance to go out and stretch your legs."

"Who is the next speaker?" inquired a guest.

"Before answering that question I would rather wait until you come back," was the chairman's reply.

Bridegroom's Mind Fixed

The Toronto Globe tells a good story of a recent wedding in that city when the bridegroom's instincts revolted at a word in the part of the ceremony he was called upon to repeat. For years he had argued with a near relative over the correctness of the word "betwixt," holding for the simpler word "between." It became a fixed part of his belief in his study of words.

Suddenly he faced an emergency when at his own marriage, with a church gathering looking on, the clergyman, as from out the blue, sprang the words:

"Betwixt thee and me."

"Between thee and me," repeated the bridegroom.

The clergyman tried again, and with like result.

It took four tries before the bridegroom, who had no desire to be stubborn, but was acting on some subconscious suggestion, finally got the right word, and the ceremony was brought to a happy conclusion.

BILLIONS IN GOLD
LOST FROM SIGHTTreasure Hoarded in All
Countries but India Has Immense Quantities.

Washington.—Who has all the gold? The United States has the great bulk of the gold that is in actual live circulation, but this is only a small part of the gold that is known to be in existence.

Thus far the best answer to the question has been furnished by the experts of the United States mint, who assert that since Christopher Columbus discovered America in 1492 the world has dug up gold to the value of $3,965,000,000, or $20,000,000,000.

Now since gold does not decay or wear out appreciably it is argued that the vast bulk of this is still in actual existence. But the authorities of the United States mint say that they can trace in actual circulation in the various countries only $9,210,000,000. By the painful operation of subtraction we learn that some $10,615,000,000 in pure gold has disappeared from view.

Use in the Arts.

Perhaps $5,000,000,000 of it has been converted into gold ornaments of various sorts. Goldsmiths with a taste for antiquarian research regard five billion as the very outside figure as an estimate of the gold "consumed" in the arts. Granting that this estimate is sound, this leaves about $5,615,000,000 which has completely disappeared from view.

Joseph S. McCoy of the United States treasury says foreign-born citizens of the United States have sequestered at least $225,000,000 in gold, while farmers, suspicious of their local banking resources, have concealed another $125,000,000 and the "misers" of the towns and cities "who live in squalor and float over their boards hidden in socks, coffee-pots or fruit-jars or buried at the foot of trees" have concealed another $44,000,000.

Hoarded in India.

But of course there is India—and when it comes to hoarding gold, the United States cannot hold a candle to India. India is where the gold is. From ryot to rajah the Indians know gold, like it, get it and keep it.

The women-folks of the most impoverished Indians have gold bangles, anklets, armlets or nosering. The marwarri, or local money-lender, turns his day's proceeds into gold and buries it. The native princes exhaust their rich Oriental imaginations in contriving new ways of "consuming" gold.

Scores of Indian temples are decorated with pure gold, offerings of the devout. Every few years the domes of these temples are regilded with the precious metal.

There is one rajah—not "Mr. A"—whose fancy it is to have his palace illuminated with multitudinous small panes of glass in the center of which is a gold sovereign worth at par, $4.86. Another Indian prince has had the hobby of collecting hundreds of thousands of gold mohurs and "great mohurs," which were the gold sovereigns and double-sovereigns in India of many years ago.

In Other Nations.

South Africa, too, is known to have a great hoard of gold. A South African bank recently estimated that the Kaffirs alone had concealed $90,000,000 worth of gold. As for China—she exports gold into India at the rate of $20,000,000 worth a month and her hoards show no signs of exhaustion.

But it is one thing to know where the gold is and quite another to know how to coax it back into the world of affairs.

French Village Rejoices
in Change of Its Name

Evreux, France.—The 203 inhabitants of St. Pierre-des-Cerailis have been filled with joy by the decision of the state council authorizing the name of their village to be changed to St. Pierre-des-Fleurs.

The literal translation of their original name is "Saint Peter of the Coffins," so that it is easy to understand their satisfaction at the change to "Saint Peter of the Flowers."

At the same time, there is a movement on foot to change the name of the department Charente-Inferieure to Charente-Maritime, because the department finds that its wines suffer in the esteem of foreigners by having the word "Inferieure" on their labels, as the mistake is made that it refers to their quality and not to the position of the department on the "lower" part of the River Charente.

Solving the Riddle

By MYRA CURTIS LANE

(© 1925, Western Newspaper Union.)

BARBARA had come to stay with Grandfather and Grandmother Barnes. She came once a year. She was now nineteen, and this time she seemed to have grown up. She was different—a woman now. It was hard to make such a pet of her.

Both the old people realized this. Grandfather and Grandmother Barnes were alone in the world. Two of their children were dead, a third in California. Tom wanted them to join him, but they clung to their old home. Barbara's mother had been Eunice, the favorite.

Perhaps that was why they were so fond of Barbara. Or, again, because they were such lonely old people. Once they had loved, then they had ceased to love, then they had quarreled and hated—all in the long ago. But now they were merely indifferent to each other, and they had nothing but the sense of companionship through so many years.

Barbara knew that, and pitied them. But of course she would never be like that with Dick. She was bursting with importance. The secret came out an hour after she arrived.

"Grandmother, I'm engaged to be married."

And she went on to tell her about Dick, what a fine position he had, and what a lot of money he was making. Grandmother listened with the piteous joy with which an old woman hears such a story from a young girl. "And do you love him, dear?" she asked timidly when Barbara had ended.

"Ever so much," answered Barbara solemnly.

"Grandfather," grandmother told her husband a little later, "Barbara's engaged to be married."

"Poor little devil," said grandfather.

Grandmother's eyes filled with tears.

"I don't think that's the way to talk," she said.

"Is she in love with him?"

"She appears to be absolutely devoted to him."

"Poor devils—both of them," said grandfather.

Grandmother checked the angry retort that burned upon her lips and turned away. It had always been like that.

No, not always, for there had been a time when there would have been tears and passionate reproaches. But those times had died with the years that were dead. Grandmother Barnes turned away.

Both knew it was the last time they would have little Barbara to themselves. Never again would the good old times recur. Next year she would be a married woman—then there would be children, household cares—

That was the tenderness that brooded over them during the remainder of Barbara's visit. The first night after she had gone was a dreadful one. Then an unprecedented thing happened. Grandfather admitted that he had been wrong.

"Guess mebbe I shouldn't have spoken that way, Tilly," he admitted to grandmother.

Grandmother began to cry again.

"It doesn't matter, Alfred," she said.

"Guess it was a sort of shock to me," said grandfather, "little Barbara getting married. Seems like old times was passing. I hope they'll be happy, but I guess they'll be like most of us."

The phrase rang tragically in grandmother's ears. "I guess that's so, Alfred," she answered. "We're all in the same boat."

Grandfather had been thinking. "Ever notice, Tilly," he said, "that the good old times is always in the past? I mean—we always look back on things somehow instead of taking them as they come."

"Life ain't so happy," said grandmother, putting her lace handkerchief to her eyes.

"I don't know who's to blame for it," "I'm blaming nobody, Alfred. Only, somehow I wish you and me had hit off together better than we did."

"That's what I was trying to get around," answered grandfather. "It seems to me, Tilly, what you and me thought was quarrels wasn't really quarrels at all. Not in that way. I mean—it's the rough and tumble of life is what we need."

Grandmother's eyes were shining. "You mean there ain't never been nothing between us, Alfred?"

"Guess that's what I do mean. We took life too hard."

Grandmother went over to him impulsively and kissed him.

"Maybe that's so," she answered. "Seems as if you've got to get old to get sense. Maybe that was living after all."

Grandfather smoked his pipe in silence. But there was measureless contentment in the hearts of both.

How He Finds Nuts.

The gray squirrel, in addition to using his storehouse, buries a very large quantity of nuts every year. A single squirrel will bury nearly, if not quite, a thousand nuts. In the winter he digs these up as he needs them, and the wonder of it is how he can find them again, covered, as they often are, with a deep layer of snow. Whether it is from memory or an extremely delicate sense of smell has never been determined, but he does find a considerable percentage of his treasure.—Nature Magazine.

AMUSEMENTS

Good news for local film fans!
"The Thundering Herd," Paramount's celluloid version of the famous Zane Grey novel, is headed this way and will make its local debut at the Metropolitan theater today.

It is a romance of the "Old West" that will carry one from the pavements of today to the trails of yesterday, from the limousines of this period to the covered wagons of 1876. All the thrills and adventurous action of fifty years ago live again in this glorious epic story which was filmed under the direction of William K. Howard.

The picture deals with two of the many caravans of pioneers that started west to hunt buffalo and establish themselves in the new land. In one caravan are Jack Holt, Raymond Hatton and Charles Ogle; in the other, Lois Wilson, Noah Berry and Lillian Leighton. Berry, who is Miss Wilson's guardian mistreats her and she endeavors to escape. Holt, in love with her, tries to aid her but is himself shot in the attempt.

Holt's company is attacked by a band of five hundred Indians. The tiny handful of buffalo hunters battle until they are out of shot. Holt heroically risks his life in crawling thru the enemy lines to an outlying ammunition wagon and turns the tide of victory.

Meanwhile dissension arises in the Beery outfit and during the fight that follows Miss Wilson makes her escape but is sighted and pursued by war party of Indians. In trying to get away from them she is caught in a stampede of two thousand fear crazed buffalo.

Only a miracle it seems, can save her! It is at this crucial moment that Holt providentially appears. In a desperate attempt to rescue her, he rides into the wild, bellowing herd. The scene that follows is one of the most breath taking in the entire production, building carefully to the final dramatic and smashing climax.

Aside from its dramatic strength of story, "The Thundering Herd" is noteworthy because of its historical significance. Every red blooded American should see this picture if only to learn something of the greatness of our own American heritage.

Tomato Blight Cause of Loss

Good Results Have Been Obtained by Setting Out Hardened Plants.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)
Tomato growers in the Middle Atlantic and Middle Western states may greatly reduce their losses from leaf-spot, or blight, by following the practices recommended in Department Bulletin 1288, The Control of Tomato Leaf-Spot, by Fred J. Pritchard and W. S. Porter, recently issued by the United States Department of Agriculture. The disease, which, in the United States, causes the commercial growers an estimated annual loss of 250,000 tons of tomatoes, is widely distributed east of the Rocky mountains.

Because spore formation of this fungus takes place only at temperatures between 59 and 80.5 degrees F., and because the disease develops best only within a temperature range of 73 to 78 degrees F., it is relatively unimportant in the northern states and in the far South. Because it thrives best in a moist atmosphere, it is more abundant in Maryland, Virginia, and the adjoining coast states than in the inland parts of the same temperature belt.

Mixtures Too Expensive.

In the past Bordeaux or other copper spray mixtures have given the best control of leaf-spot, but profits have not always been increased enough to justify the expense. The bulletin suggests that a more effective and economical method of control lies in the use of modified field practices. Good results have been obtained by setting out large, stocky, well-hardened plants early in the spring. Since the fungus does not produce spores at low temperatures the disease will not begin to do damage in this region before the latter half of June and for that reason these early plants escape more leaf-spot than the small ones that are commonly set late. Plants of the desirable kind at least six weeks old can be produced cheaply outdoors in the South and shipped north at the right time for planting. In 1923 more than 30,000,000 southern-grown tomato plants were shipped into Indiana and a considerable number into the Eastern states. Some of the larger northern companies manufacturing tomato products are growing their own plants in the South, in order to obtain healthy plants of suitable size and age. The indiscriminate purchase of southern stock of unknown history cannot be recommended, because of the attendant danger of introducing wilt and root-knot. There is need of a system of plant certification to protect the careful southern grower and the northern purchaser against this danger.

Fungus Prevented.

The fungus can be largely prevented from over-wintering by plowing under the old tomato vines in the fall. The vines must be thoroughly covered to kill all the fungus on them and this can be accomplished by first cutting them with a disk and by using a weed hook on the plow or a weed hook and jointer. The fungus also grows and produces spores on dead weeds, grasses, and remains of various crops, especially cornstalks. By keeping these dead materials covered with soil and by destroying such plants as the horse-nettle, groundcherry, jimsonweed and nightshade and by burning dead weeds and grasses along the fence rows and other waste places, the disease can be well controlled.

Copies of the bulletin may be obtained free as long as the supply lasts by addressing the United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

Farm Hints

Poultry should be culled once each month in the year.

Five good milk cows will support an average farm family.

Reading, searching and thinking are more important in farming in 1925 than ever.

Train and organize your common sense about farming; that's what science is.

If hens are in good laying condition the present price of eggs should justify feeding them high-priced feed.

A little more money for feed to provide a good ration ought to bring good returns through the sale of eggs at this season of the year.

If there are a large number of culls in the flock that will not lay they should be sold for as much as they will bring for they will soon eat more feed than they are worth.

Pure sunlight, without the interference even of window glass, is an essential in making strong-boned animals, according to experiments conducted by agricultural chemists throughout the country.

Under the present conditions every dairyman should give his cow-testing association records special attention and eliminate every cow that fails to show a profit, provided they have been handled in such a way that no remains as to their ability to

SHORT STORIES OF THE BUCKEYE STATE

A NEW PICTURE OF LINCOLN.

Almost feverish efforts have been made to dig up everything bearing on the life of Abraham Lincoln, in the last quarter of a century and many photographs of the great liberator have been produced; many more than one would suppose would have been taken at that early stage in the development of photography, even of a candidate for the presidency. It seemed that all such pictures of Mr. Lincoln had been secured and reproduced in connection with the many Lincoln books and articles, but what appears to be a new one has recently been found in Columbus.

Charles W. Justice saw a peculiar looking souvenir of evidently ancient make among the effects of the Savage jewelry concern recently, and examining it found that it was one made for use in the presidential campaign of 1860, and bore on one side a picture of Mr. Lincoln and on the other that of Hannibal Hamlin, the candidate on the ticket with him for the vice presidency. The souvenir is circular and about the size of a silver half dollar. Circling above the head of Lincoln are the letters of his name with the date 1860 below, while Mr. Hamlin's name and the date are similarly arranged on the other side.

The Savage jewelry concern runs back beyond 1860 in the business history of Columbus, and doubtless the souvenir has been among its assets all these years. Mr. Justice who is stenographer to the supreme court bought the souvenir for its historical value and Joe Goodman has caused an enlarged photograph of the Lincoln side to be made which brings out the Lincoln picture very distinctly. The youthful face and the hollow cheeks are to be seen in other pictures of Mr. Lincoln but it is believed that these two features do not appear together in any other picture. A still larger one is to be made for illustration purposes, and Mr. Justice has given the souvenir to the state Historical society.—J. H. Galbraith in Columbus Dispatch.

Water Quickly Evaporated

Approximately 7,000,000 tons of fresh water flow daily into the Dead sea, which has no outlet. Because this fresh water is immediately evaporated the height of the sea level is not affected.

Suits For Divorce.

Lena Hurley has filed suit in common pleas court for divorce from Oscar Hurley. They were married in his city, March 26, 1921, and have two children.

She charges her husband with gross neglect and abandonment, and asks for the custody of the children.

Abernethy & Simkins represent the plaintiff.

Leota Metzger has filed suit in common pleas court for a divorce from Joseph Metzger. They were married February 20, 1901, and have one son, Andrew, 20 years of age. She charges her husband with profligacy and lascivious conduct during the past six months on South Court street where he lived in adulterous intercourse with a certain woman to whom he gave an automobile, household goods and a piano. She also charges failure to provide. Plaintiff believes that the defendant is in Reno, Nevada, for the sole purpose of obtaining a divorce and to defeat her rights as to alimony and property. She asks for reasonable alimony and that the defendant be enjoined from disposing of the property. A temporary restraining order has been allowed by Judge Curtin. C. A. Leist represents the plaintiff.

Pole Too Long

Master John Linpus Harrell, six-year-old son of J. A. Harrell, clothing man of Crawfordsville, is in the habit of sneaking out with his daddy for an evening at vaudeville.

Impressed by music, he takes particular notice of the musician and his "big violin," as he calls it, in the orchestra—meaning the bass viol.

"Why mother," says John, "he has a big sawer and saws and saws like this," as he goes through the motion of bowing.

Jumping up as he reaches high above his head he continues:

"And mother, the man can hardly reach up the pole."—Indianapolis News.

Up a Tree

Dorothy Anne was making a racket on the back porch. Her mother went to see what the child was doing. To her surprise, her four-year-old was tugging violently at a long stepladder, trying to get it out of the back door. "What in the world are you doing, child?" asked mother, being much impressed by Dorothy Anne's over-estimated strength.

"I heard daddy say he was up a tree and didn't know what to do, so I was going to help him down," smiled the good-intentioned little pal.

"How so?"

"Why, he drives a motor car, and actually asserts that he would rather pick up a pedestrian or two now and then than to ride alone!"—Kansas City Star.

Three Days

Screen Play by Lucien Hubbard--Directed by William Howard

Have you seen "The Covered Wagon" or "North of 36?" If you have, you'll know what we mean when we say that "The Thundering Herd" belongs in the same class.

The story by Zane Grey has the same historical importance.

The production is of the same gigantic dimensions.

The result is just as thrillingly entertaining.

Picture the setting—the Western wilderness of 1876.

Enormous herds of buffalo running wild across the plains. The rush of pioneers to the new fields of fortune. The wanton slaughter of the buffalo by the hide-hunters, inciting the Indians to new and savage uprisings.

Picture Zane Grey's greatest romance against that thrilling background!

With a company of 1,000 recreating the amazing scenes and 2,000 maddened buffalo in a REAL stampede.

And the stampede is just ONE clap of thunder in this drama of thundering thrills!

Greatest American Romance Since—

WHALES ARE SLAIN BY HAIRY MONSTER

Strange Battle Witnessed on the Coast of Africa.

Durban, South Africa.—H. C. Ballance of the Margate estate here was walking along the seacoast when he saw two whales battling for life against a strange sea monster whose head reared up 20 feet above the surface of the sea.

Ballance watched while the monster killed both whales and, exhausted, floated ashore on its back. Ballance remembered an appointment and went home, but returned to the beach next morning and found the monster stranded and unconscious.

He measured it and found it was 47 feet long with a tail 10 feet long and 2 feet wide and, instead of a head, a trunk like an elephant's, 5 feet long and 14 inches in diameter, but resembling a pig's snout at the end. The monster was entirely covered with snow-white hair 10 inches long.

For ten days it remained on the beach, apparently resting. Then natives saw it refloat itself and swim off in a southeasterly direction.

New American Church in Paris Will Be Built

New York.—Sufficient funds to build an American interdenominational church in Paris have been obtained and the work will start forthwith, according to Dr. Joseph Wilson Cochran, former Presbyterian minister in Detroit and now pastor of the American church in Paris.

Dr. Cochran is on the eve of sailing for France, after several weeks in this country in the interest of the project.

The project has the backing of the Presbyterian general assembly and is under control of the American and Foreign Christian union, the president of which is Dr. George Alexander, pastor of the First Presbyterian church. For many years there has been an American church in Paris, but it has never been adequate and has been obliged to carry on outside work in rented halls.

The total cost of the lot, church and parish house will be in excess of $500,000. The buildings will be in the Quai d'Orsay, facing the Seine and opposite the Grand Palais. It will be among a group of buildings which are said to be "Americanizing" the left bank of the river.

Danes Building Seven Ports in Faroe Isles

COPENHAGEN.—No fewer than seven new harbors of varying sizes and importance are now in course of construction in the Faroe islands.

At Thorshavn, the capital of the islands, work on a new harbor, comprising two quays, protected by a breakwater 600 feet long, is well advanced and is expected to be completed at the end of next year.

A more modest harbor nearing completion is at Skopen, the northwest point of the island of Sandoe, and consists of an outer and inner mole which will afford shelter for fishing craft or small tonnage. The harbor will also serve as a lifeboat station and emergency anchorage for vessels in danger at a particularly treacherous part of the coast.

Other harbors in course of erection are at Midvaag, Soervaaq on the island of Vaagoe, and at Tveraa, Kvilgig and Hov.

Serlio Script, Lost 387 Years, Found in N. Y.

New York.—Lost for 387 years and searched for by savants for more than three centuries, the "missing link" in the complete manual of architecture which Sebastiano Serlio planned to give the world in the Sixteenth century has been discovered at Columbia university.

Buried in an unpublished manuscript recently acquired by the university's school of architecture, it was discovered by Prof. W. B. Dinsmoor, librarian. In announcing the discovery, Professor Dinsmoor declared the Serlio manuscript of great architectural and bibliographical interest and destined to cause a revision of modern judgment of the French renaissance.

"Internal evidence, such as analysis of the nine kinds of paper used for the text and drawings," said Professor Dinsmoor, "revealed the work had been executed between 1541 and 1551."

Sharp Tongue Cuts

Off Wife's Allowance

New York.—Mrs. Mary Flynn of Hamilton Beach, Queens, brought a charge of nonsupport against her husband, John, in Jamaica police court and then told Magistrate Doyle about John's shortcomings.

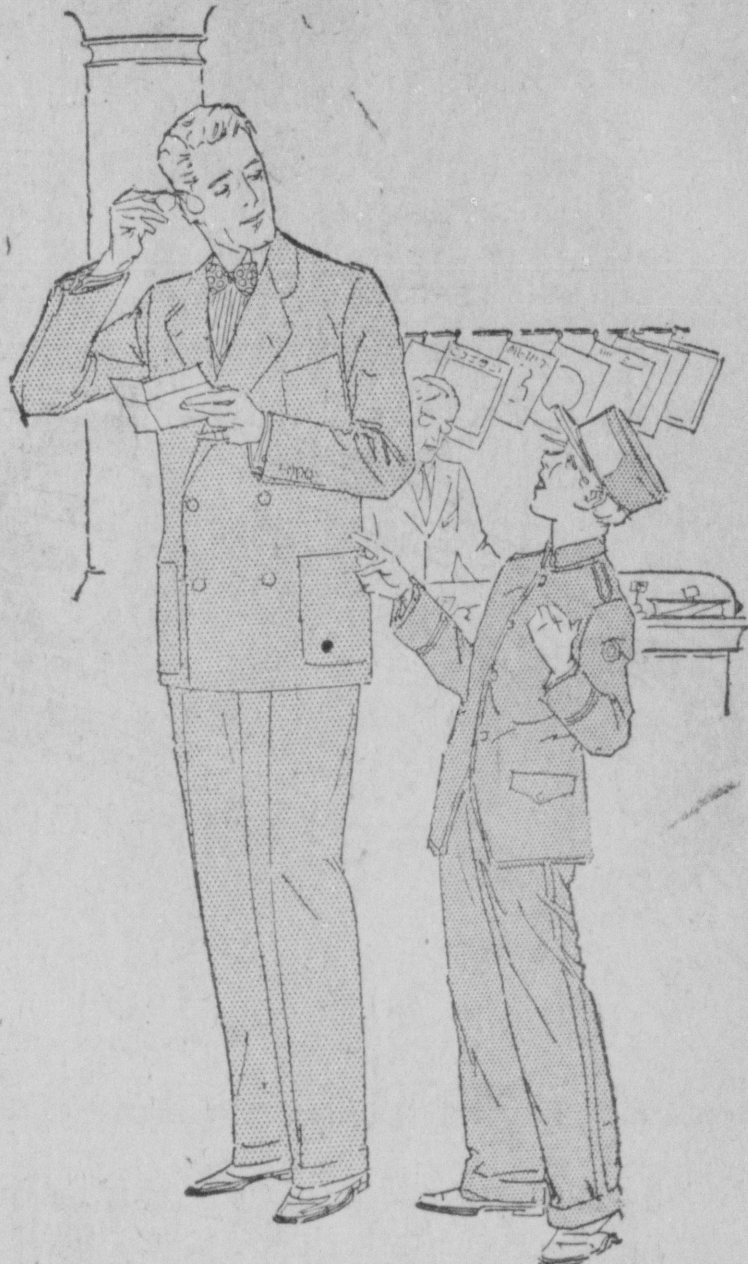

"Madam," said Magistrate Doyle, after listening for twenty minutes, "it's a terrible death to be talked to death. Many a man of vigorous constitution and strong mind has succumbed to it. In this particular case I started out with full sympathy for you and none for your husband, but after listening to you and noticing your displays of temper, I am beginning to think that the wrong is not on your husband's side."
